

Conceptual analysis of "volunteer" around the world

	Word	Meaning	Historical root
English	Volunteer		Started to be used in the seventeenth century. It has the meaning of an enlisted soldier, and is used for "a person who enters military service, not through obligation or as a regular soldier, but of one's own free will". Initially there were many cases where it was used with the meaning of unremunerated work, or "a person who offers one's services on one's own initiative". Sources: Oxford English Dictionary
English	Volunteerism	Refers to be activities done on a "voluntary" basis. It encompasses the entire "voluntary sector" but "voluntary" in the "volunteerism" context means not mandated by law (as government is). Sources: "Volunt/ar/eer/ism: What's the Difference?" English	Volunteerism	A more focused term that speaks to anything relevant to volunteers and volunteering. According to some people "volunteerism" refers to the activity, while "voluntarism" speaks to the nonprofit setting. More importantly "volunteerism" encompasses volunteering regardless of setting. Thus it allows government agencies at all levels to be included. Sources: "Volunt/ar/eer/ism: What's the Difference?" By Susan J. 		« En se souciant des autres et en suscitant le changement autour d'eux, les bénévoles réduisent la souffrance et les disparités tout en acquérant des compétences, une meilleure estime de soi ainsi que l'occasion d'apporter des changements dans leur propre vie. Les gens travaillent pour améliorer la qualité de vie de leurs voisins et, ce faisant, ils améliorent la leur ». « Le service bénévole résulte d'un choix; il n'est ni obligatoire ni forcé. Il contribue au bien-être d'une personne ou de la société dans son ensemble et s'exerce habituellement de manière structurée par l'entremise d'un organisme sans but lucratif ou du secteur public, sans compensation financière ni rémunération d'aucune sorte. Il existe d'autres formes de travail non rémunéré comme les ordonnances de travaux communautaires. Bien que ces activités apportent un soutien indéniable à la communauté, elles sont imposées par une autorité. Sources : « Bénévoles Canada » This word was used in the latter half of the thirteenth century, but was not used very much until the eighteenth century. Its original meaning is to act with good intentions, and it means a person who acts voluntarily under no obligation and without compensation.
